PROFILE

Student entrepreneur and published author focused on business strategy, sustainable technology and global innovation. As founder of BioModuTech, I am developing an R&D concept exploring modular electronics, repairability and lower-impact materials. Through entrepreneurship programmes, industry research, public speaking and international debate, I am strengthening the judgement and leadership needed to build responsible, globally relevant businesses.

ENTREPRENEURIAL JOURNEY

I build entrepreneurial knowledge through market research, opportunity analysis, business-model thinking and strategic planning. I study how companies create value and how emerging technologies can solve real-world needs, while developing ideas through programmes, pitching and practical project work.

ENTREPRENEURIAL PROJECTS

BioModuTech
Founder • R&D Concept

BioModuTech is a sustainability-focused R&D concept exploring modular electronics and responsible materials to help reduce electronic waste. Current progress centres on concept refinement, repairability research, product design and defining a practical prototype pathway, with a long-term aim of improving circularity without compromising durability or affordability.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

I continue developing expertise through independent learning, business case studies, entrepreneurship programmes and practical projects focused on strategy, finance, innovation, global business and emerging technologies.
